Getting the English text from the image is challenging due to the high density of text and the quality of the image. However, I can provide a transcription of the visible text, which seems to be an advertisement for Ayer's Pills and a description of their efficacy in treating various ailments. The text is not entirely clear, but it mentions conditions such as sick headache, constipation, dyspepsia, and liver troubles. The pills are promoted as easy to take and effective. The advertisement also includes a caution against cheap imitations and references to the preparation of the pills by Dr. J.C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., U.S.A. The text is written in English and appears to be an advertisement for the product. The background contains a logo of a beer brand, suggesting that the advertisement is placed in a setting associated with drinking or leisure.
